FALLEN STAR: Fans honor actor Christopher Reeve at his Hollywood Walk of Fame star on Monday.

Reeve: An Off-Screen Hero

By the time he died, Christopher Reeve had at last "escaped the cape," becoming bigger than the Superman character he portrayed.

Reeve championed cutting-edge research into spinal cord injury, offering himself as a guinea pig for new therapies and vowing he would one day walk again. He never did. But his dream is now a plausible one for thousands of others who are paralyzed.

The actor and activist died of heart failure Sunday after developing a serious bloodstream infection from a bed sore, a common problem for paralyzed people.

Reeve suffered one of the most severe spinal injuries possible when he was thrown from his horse and broke his neck during an equestrian competition in May 1995.

Since then, he and his charities have raised some $40 million for spinal cord research. Some of that has been for embryonic stem cell research, a promising but contentious field of medicine that the Bush administration has severely restricted because it involves destroying embryos. Scientists think these early, all-purpose cells can be coaxed to form nerves and specialized tissues to repair a host of woes.

But Reeve's legacy is more than dollars and advocacy, many said. It's the hope that fewer diseases in the future will be called incurable.

"He's demonstrated that there is hope and that there are things that can be done," said Dr. John McDonald of the Spinal Cord Injury Program at Washington University in St. Louis where Reeve was treated. (AP)

Militants Disarm in Baghdad

Iraqi leaders offer cash for weapons in anti-violence bid

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Shiite fighters in tracksuits and sneakers unloaded cars full of machine guns, mortars and land mines Monday as a five-day weapons-for-cash disarmament program kicked off in Baghdad's Sadr City district — a sign of progress in the center of Shiite resistance in Iraq.

Followers of radical Shiite cleric Muqtada al-Sadr promised the government last weekend they would hand over medium and heavy weapons for cash in a deal considered a major step toward ending weeks of fighting with U.S. and Iraqi forces.

In return, the government has pledged to start releasing al-Sadr followers who have not committed crimes, suspend raids and rebuild the war-ravaged slum.

Allawi

Members of al-Sadr's Mahdi Army started showing up at three designated police stations early Monday morning, carting bags full of guns and explosives — even TNT paste. Many of the weapons appeared old and rusted, but government officials said they were satisfied with the first day's haul.

There have been several truces before with al-Sadr — none of which lasted more than 40 days.

"We are going to prevail against the forces of evil here in Iraq," Prime Minister Ayad Allawi said on a visit to Samarra, another former insurgent stronghold. U.S. and Iraqi forces reclaimed that city by force, and Allawi hinted the same would happen in Sadr City if negotiations fail. ALEXANDRA ZAVIS (AP)

Fall From Grace

Parishioners who went to the final Mass at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church in East Boston — ending 99 years of feasts, funerals, weddings and baptisms — Sunday declared that they had witnessed a miracle, the Boston Globe reported. Without being touched by human hands, the church's statue of the Virgin Mary, which stood in front of the altar, tipped over suddenly and thudded to the floor after Mass, parishioners said. Trembling and crying, they called it a sign from God and protested the Boston Archdiocese's decision to close their church. "This is a miracle!" Gerri Costa shouted after the statue was righted. Dolphin researcher Dr. Michael Hyson has a theory that dolphins can switch human genes "on" and "off" to help us heal and may have the power to alter human DNA, he told Copley News Service. as autism, cerebral palsy and depression. Hyson can't yet explain how dolphins affect human genes, but he said he believes they've had this capacity for thousands of years. (EXPRESS)

Study Finds 39M Americans In Working Poor Families

One in every five U.S. jobs pays less than a poverty-level wage for a family of four, according to a study by the nonpartisan Working Poor Families Project. The result of so many low-paying jobs is that nearly 39 million Americans, including 20 million children, are members of "low-income working families" — those barely have enough money to cover basic needs like housing and child care, the study found. # Bush, Kerry Spar in West

Candidates exchange jabs on oil, terrorism ahead of final debate

HOBBS, N.M. | Bracing for their final debate, John Kerry accused President Bush of favoring "friends in the oil industry" over consumers strapped with rising fuel bills on Monday, while Bush said his challenger so misunderstood the war on terror that he thought it could be reduced to "a nuisance" akin to prostitution or illegal gambling.

Both candidates campaigned in the West ahead of their third debate on Wednesday at Arizona State University in Tempe.

At a rally in Hobbs, N.M., Bush ridiculed Kerry for saying in an interview in The New York Times Magazine, "We have to get back to the place we were, where terrorists are not the focus of our lives but they're a nuisance."

"I couldn't disagree more," Bush said. "Our goal is not to reduce terror to some acceptable level of nuisance."

Anti-Kerry Broadcast Questioned

WASHINGTON | The Democratic Party and 18 senators are objecting to a broadcasting company's plan to air on 62 TV stations a documentary critical of John Kerry's anti-war activities after he returned home from Vietnam three decades ago.

Sinclair Broadcast Group has asked its television stations to pre-empt regular programming to run the documentary as part of an hour-long program two weeks before the Nov. 2 election.

The documentary, "Stolen Honor: Wounds That Never Heal," chronicles Kerry's 1971 testimony before Congress and links him to activist and actress Jane Fonda.

The Democrats contend that the airing of the film constitutes an illegal in-kind contribution to President Bush's campaign. They also want the Federal Communication Commission to investigate whether Sinclair's plan is an improper use of public airwaves.

"The documentary is just a part of a special news event that we're putting together," said Mark Hyman, a vice president at Sinclair who also is a conservative commentator for the company. "We've invited one person to be a guest. That's Senator John Kerry." LIZ SIDOTI (AP)

Corporate Tax Bill Passes

Senate sends $136B measure to Bush, also approves disaster aid

WASHINGTON | The Senate shipped President Bush a wide-ranging $136 billion corporate tax-cut bill and a disaster aid package on Monday, letting lawmakers head home for the finale of the presidential and congressional campaigns.

Florida, a vote-rich state that both parties covet, will be chief beneficiary of the $14.5 billion disaster measure as the state rebuilds from a battering by four recent hurricanes.

The tax bill, which the Senate approved 69-17, began as an effort to help U.S. exporters avoid European tariffs. But as Republican leaders hunted for votes, it swelled into the most profound rewrite of the corporate tax code in two decades.

The final product pared taxes for interests ranging from major manufacturers to native Alaskan whalers and ethanol producers. Other winners included fishing tackle box makers, NASCAR track owners and foreigners winning bets at U.S. horse and dog racing tracks.

There also is a $10.1 billion buyout of holders of quotas held by tobacco farmers, though a provision allowing the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco was dropped. ALAN FRAM (AP)

Teen Found Alive In Wrecked Car Days After Crash

SEATTLE | After eight days, Laura Hatch's family had almost given the 17-year-old up for dead, and sheriff's deputies had all but written her off as a runaway. Then she was found, badly hurt, but alive and conscious, in the back seat of a crumpled car, 200 feet down a ravine.

A volunteer searcher who said she had had several vivid dreams of a wooded area found the wrecked car in the trees Sunday.

Hatch, who remained hospitalized Monday in serious condition, was last seen at a party on Oct. 2.

Sheriff's Sgt. John Urquhart noted he had never known of a person to survive eight days without food or water. He said an investigation into the accident was under way. (AP)

EU to Scrap 12-Year-Old Sanctions Against Libya

Foreign ministers vote to reward country for disavowing WMD

LUXEMBOURG | The European Union on Monday ended 12 years of sanctions against Libya and eased an arms embargo to reward the North African country for giving up plans to develop weapons of mass destruction.

The decision by the EU foreign ministers brought the 25-nation bloc in line with a U.N. decision last year and reflected a significant warming of relations in recent months.

The U.N. sanctions were imposed in 1992 to force Tripoli to hand over two Libyans indicted for the 1988 bombing of an American airliner over the Scottish town of Lockerbie. A year later, they were expanded to include a freeze on Libyan assets in foreign bank accounts and a ban on buying oil equipment.

The Security Council suspended the sanctions after the two Lockerbie suspects were delivered for trial in 1999, and abolished them last year after Libya agreed to compensate the families of the Lockerbie victims as well as those of the 1989 bombing of a French airliner over Niger.

The EU wants to improve relations with Libya now that Tripoli has scrapped its program to develop weapons of mass destruction. The United States lifted most of its commercial sanctions in April.

Britain was pushing for a complete normalization of relations between the EU and Libya and a full lifting of a separate arms embargo, according to a senior British official in London. (AP)

Now Free, Hamdi on Saudi Soil

'Enemy combatant' renounces citizenship, terrorism in deal

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA | A Saudi-American captured in Afghanistan, labeled an enemy combatant and held in U.S. solitary confinement for nearly three years without charge returned to his family Monday after agreeing to forfeit his U.S. citizenship for freedom.

Yaser Esam Hamdi, who was captured in late 2001 during the U.S. battle against the Taliban, landed in Saudi Arabia Monday, Interior Ministry spokesman Brig. Gen. Mansour al-Turki said.

Hamdi's lawyer, Frank Dunham Jr., a federal public defender in Virginia, said he spoke to Hamdi by telephone after his military plane landed. "This is a really nice young man, someone Saudi Arabia can be proud of," Dunham said. "He didn't fight anybody. He didn't shoot anybody."

The deal with the U.S. government freeing Hamdi required him to renounce terrorism and agree not to sue the United States over his imprisonment.

The Supreme Court ruled in June that Hamdi and other detainees classified as enemy combatants could not be held indefinitely without charge. That led to the negotiations for Hamdi's release. (AP)

Key Afghan Drops Boycott

Karzai's top challenger says he'll accept ruling on voter irregularities

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | President Hamid Karzai's main challenger Monday backed off a boycott of Afghanistan's landmark election over allegations of fraud, saying he would accept the formation of an independent commission to look into any irregularities in the vote.

The announcement by ethnic Tajik candidate Yunus Qanooni that he would accept the formation of the election commission followed similar statements Sunday by Massooda Jalal, the only female presidential hopeful, and ethnic Hazara candidate Mohammed Mohaqeq.

"I don't want to be against the election and I appreciate the good will of the people of Afghanistan," Qanooni said. "I want to prove to the people of Afghanistan that the national interest is my highest interest."

He said he made his decision

Afghan election workers bide their time at a counting center in Kabul on Monday. Authorities are waiting for advice on what to do about suspected illegal votes before counting the ballots from the country's first presidential election, officials said.

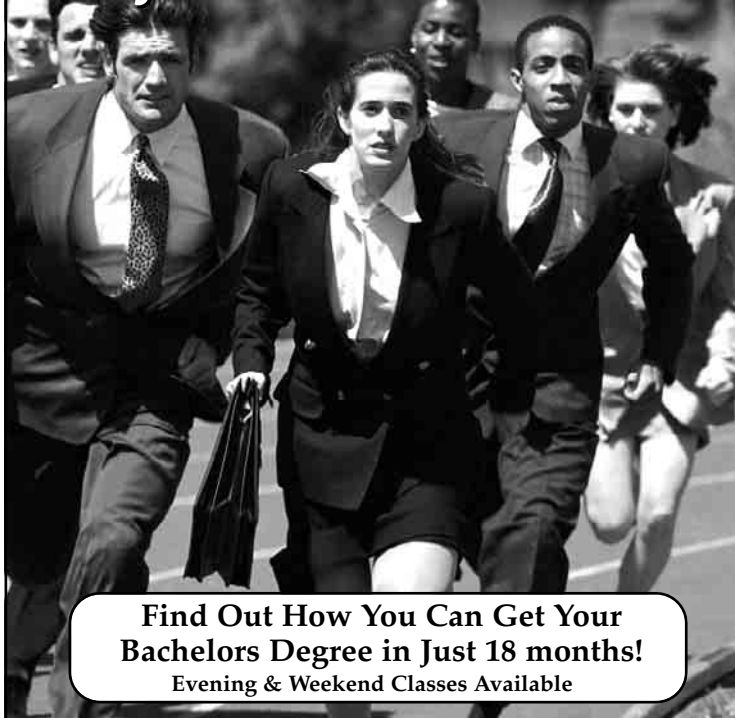

after a meeting with U.N. representative Jean Arnault and U.S. Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad.

The announcements were a huge victory for election organizers, who agreed to set up the panel Sunday in hopes it would end the crisis that emerged when all 15 opposition candidates declared the boycott in the middle of Saturday's voting.

Their complaint focused on allegations that the supposedly indelible ink used to mark voters' thumbs in some polling stations could be rubbed off, allowing some to vote more than once.

International electoral observers have criticized the 15, saying their demand to nullify the vote was unjustified. DANIEL COONEY (AP)

Sharon Loses Symbolic Vote on Gaza

Israeli leader faces fierce criticism in Parliament

JERUSALEM | Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon inaugurated a tempestuous session of parliament Monday by defending his plan to dismantle all Jewish settlements in the Gaza Strip and a few in the West Bank. Right-wing legislators want to dismantle his government instead.

Sharon told a noisy parliament that he would present the plan for approval on Oct. 25, then said he would bring a bill for compensating the 8,500 settlers to be evacuated.

In a symbolic first blow, the parliament voted against Sharon's statement, 53-44, but his government was not immediately endangered. Two motions of no confidence were voted down.

Over the heckling of hard-line lawmakers who reject the concept of removing any Jewish settlements, Sharon declared that dismantling the settlements is necessary to return the diplomatic initiative to Israel.

"It is essential for us to see that our friends, especially the United States, stand by us," Sharon said.

After decades of building and expanding Jewish settlements, Sharon suddenly announced last December that he favored pulling all Jewish settlers out of Gaza.

He explained that leaving 8,200 settlers in Gaza among 1.3 million Palestinians was untenable, and evacuating settlements there would help Israel hold on to main settlement blocs in the West Bank. Palestinians call the plan a land grab aimed at preventing them from establishing a state. (AP)

Saudis to Bar Women From Voting

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA | Women may neither vote nor run in Saudi Arabia's first nationwide elections, the government announced Monday, dashing hopes of progressive Saudis and easing fears among conservatives that the kingdom is moving too fast on reforms.

The decision was first announced by Interior Minister Prince Nayef in an interview published Monday. "I don't think that women's participation is possible," he told a Kuwaiti newspaper.

An electoral official cited administrative and logistical reasons Monday for the decision to ban women from the municipal elections, scheduled to be held in three stages from Feb. 10 to April 21.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said there are not enough women to run women's-only registration centers and polling stations, and that only a fraction of the country's women have the photo identity cards that would have been needed to vote. DONNA ABU-NASR (AP)

No Holiday for Md. Voters

Election board works long hours to keep up with high registration

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | At the state election board, employees were busy on the Columbus Day holiday Monday sorting through stacks of voter registration applications, part of what election officials around the state say is a flood of applications for a presidential election year.

With absentee ballot requests also high, election officials are expecting a big turnout next month, reflecting a high degree of interest in the race between President Bush and Democratic Sen. John Kerry of Massachusetts.

Tuesday was the last day to register for the general election, and local officials have been struggling for days to stay abreast of the steady stream of requests from new voters.

"Local boards are working seven days a week, 10 to 12 hours a day," said Linda Lamone, state elections administrator.

In addition to the flood of applications to local boards, many voters are sending applications directly to the state board, she said.

Montgomery County expects new registrations during the first 12 days of October to top 10,000 new voters, according to Marjorie Roher, administrative specialist in the county election board.

"We've brought in additional workers to assist, and we are working longer hours more days of the week," she said. TOM STUCKEY (AP)

Cosby On Message in Richmond

Comedian continues tough talk to black students during tour

RICHMOND, VA. | Entertainer Bill Cosby spoke bluntly to students at mostly black public schools in Richmond Monday, exhorting them to dedicate themselves to graduation, not to gangs, and to control anger that threatens to derail their dreams.

Cosby toured four schools with former Gov. L. Douglas Wilder, who is running for mayor of Richmond, but refused to discuss politics. But Cosby stuck to a tough-love message for children from broken or impoverished homes, alternately cajoling them, sometimes correcting their grammar and embracing a few in a bear hug.

"Study. That's all. It's not tough. You're not picking cotton. You're not picking up the trash," Cosby pleaded at Fred D. Thompson Middle School.

Cosby's comments were similar to those he made when he shocked a Washington audience in May by citing high dropout rates for inner-city black students and criticized low-income blacks for squandering opportunities the civil rights movement won for them. BOB LEWIS (AP)

Global Concerns Drive Oil Over $53

Nationwide strike in oil-producing Nigeria gives markets jitters

Oil futures prices advanced to a new high Monday as a strike began in Africa's largest exporter of crude, exacerbating global supply concerns at a time of strong demand and reduced output in the hurricane-ravaged Gulf of Mexico.

Worries about Russian oil supplies also persist as oil giant Yukos, struggling to repay a multibillion-dollar back-tax bill, got hit Monday with $1.34 billion in fines.

Crude rose 33 cents to $53.64, surpassing Friday's record settlement price of $53.31 on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

While oil prices are about 80 percent higher than a year ago, they are more than $26 below the peak inflation-adjusted price reached in 1981.

Underlying market jitters is the fact that excess available output is scant, with global production capacity only about 1 percent above the daily supply of 82 million barrels. Demand rose faster than expected this year, particularly in China and India, catching many off guard.

In Nigeria, a nationwide strike to protest higher fuel prices began Monday, shutting down most of Lagos, Nigeria's commercial capital. The strike is only supposed to last four days. BRAD FOSS (AP)

Surveillance School

Japanese keep their students on track with monitoring tags

TRACKING | Every time a fourth grader passes through Rikkyo Elementary School's front gate, a small, gray plastic tag tucked inside his backpack beams a message to a computer in a nearby office.

The computer logs the time they enter and leave and a security guard watching the screen takes note. Moments later, their parents receive confirmation by e-mail.

"This won't prevent crimes against children," said Tsukasa Tanaka, principal at Rikkyo, a private boys school in Tokyo. "But without the tags, we might not know that a student hadn't made it to school until we take roll."

The school is testing RFID tags, about the size of small keychains. Motorists with prepaid RFID cards zip through traffic toll gates without stopping.

Developed by Japanese semiconductor and computer maker Fujitsu Ltd., the tags use a technology that is beginning to gain widespread acceptance globally.

While critics say proposals to embed RFID chips in drivers' licenses — the U.S. state of Virginia is looking at the idea — would violate individual privacy, the technology continues to get even more personal.

A few schools have gone a step further, buying mobile phones with embedded Global Positioning System technology so parents can track their children all the time.

The school bans mobile phones, Tanaka said.

The tags contain tiny computer chips linked to small antennae. Radio-wave transmitters near the school's front gate read the chips, which have unique signals for each student. KENJI HALL (AP)

Washington Post columnist MICHAEL WILBON was online Monday to talk about the Redskins loss to the Ravens.

At this point of the season, what would you say is a realistic expectation out of the Redskins for this year? Playoffs certainly seem a year or so away, especially given how Philly and Giants are performing?

Nobody should mention the word, "Playoffs." They should just be thinking about playing a complete game.

It seems to me the offensive line takes too long to develop the blocking scheme for a faster back like Clinton Portis. Wouldn't it make more sense to try and open holes more quickly and let him get to the hole quicker?

That's one of the many things that people think is wrong with the running game. I don't know if the problems with the Redskins offense is macro or micro, but it's not just blocking schemes. What is ailing the Redskins offense also involves the quarterback, the receivers and apparently the play calling. So I don't know where to start.

Is Patrick Ramsey the Redskins future quarterback?

Apparently not. Not if Joe Gibbs is the coach, and I don't know what Gregg Williams thinks of Ramsey. I only bring that up because if anybody on Gibbs' staff is going to succeed him as head coach, I would think Williams name would be at the top of the list.

I don't think I've heard anyone question the coaching acumen of Joe Gibbs over the years. However, I've heard people question his ability to judge talent, including the group of free agents he brought in this year. Mark Brunell has looked dreadful. Phillip Daniels and Mike Barrow have been hurt, and Clinton Portis hardly looks like the two-time 1,500 yard rusher that he was in Denver.

You probably hit on something. It was Bobby Beathard and Charlie Casserly picking the players when Gibbs was coach. I am always in favor of a separation of power between coach and GM.

Gibbs Is Running Out of Answers

'Miserable' Gibbs tries to snap losing streak

REDSKINS | Maybe it takes five games or so for Joe Gibbs to find his stride, as it did when he first joined the Washington Redskins 23 years ago.

Right now, however, the Hall of Fame coach has a pathetic, unimaginative offense despite the most expensive roster in NFL history. Like Steve Spurrier before him, Gibbs is running out of answers early in the season.

"There's nothing good about this," Gibbs said Monday. "We don't like it. The only way out of it is to work our way out of it."

The Redskins (1-4) had their worst offensive day in 43 years Sunday, gaining just 107 yards in a 17-10 home loss to the Baltimore Ravens. It was the franchise's lowest output since the 1961 Redskins — a team that went 1-12-1 — produced just 97 yards in a 27-6 loss to the Baltimore Colts, according to the Elias Sports Bureau.

Gibbs now has a four-game losing streak, his longest since starting 0-5 as a rookie head coach in 1981.

"I just remember being miserable," Gibbs said when asked about the 0-5 start. "And I'd say this is every bit as miserable."

The task is tough. The Redskins, who haven't had a winning season since 1999, have lost 14 of their last 17 games.

"It gets frustrating, man," said linebacker LaVar Arrington. "This is my fifth season. ... It's like the same old results every single season, the same thing every season."

Gibbs did some significant tinkering with his offensive schemes to turn the 1981 season around and finish 8-8. The coach is ambiguous about his plans this time, but he acknowledges the problems are everywhere — in the passing game, in the running game, in the coaching.

"We've got to lay out a plan to try and work our way out of that," Gibbs said. "That's the only solution to it. I don't think it's any one person. It's all of us, and I include myself in that." JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

AT A LOSS: Joe Gibbs hasn't lost four straight games as a head coach in the NFL since he started in Washington in 1981. That year, the Redskins finished 8-8.

Terps at a Crossroads After Loss

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Maryland has reached a pivotal point in the 2004 football season far sooner than anticipated.

Long before they opened the season in September, the Terrapins figured their postseason fate would be determined weeks from now during a stretch of Atlantic Coast Conference games against Florida State, Virginia and Virginia Tech.

In the wake of Saturday's stunning 20-7 loss to Georgia Tech, the thinking has changed.

The defeat left the Terrapins (3-2, 1-1) embroiled in a quarterback controversy and in serious need of a victory this Saturday against North Carolina State.

Sophomore Joel Statham went 6-for-14 for 36 yards before being lifted with Maryland down 20-0. True freshman Jordan Steffy directed a touchdown drive, but his inexperience and the 13-point deficit proved too much to overcome.

So now head coach Ralph Friedgen must decide between the erratic Statham and an over-matched understudy.

A decision is expected Tuesday.

"I'm going to do what I have to do to win football games," the coach said. (AP)

Another Loss for Redskins: Bowen Out for the Year

REDSKINS | Washington Redskins safety Matt Bowen is out for the season with a torn ligament in his right knee.

The fifth-year player tore the anterior cruciate ligament when he planted his foot awkwardly while covering a punt in the first quarter of Sunday night's 17-10 loss to the Baltimore Ravens.

His injury further depletes a defense that played Sunday's game without linebacker LaVar Arrington, defensive end Phillip Daniels, safety Andre Lott and linebacker Mike Barrow.

The Redskins hope to get Arrington and possibly Lott back for next Sunday's game at Chicago. Arrington, who has missed three games after knee surgery, did some monitored running Monday for the first time since his operation. (AP)

Troubled Caminiti Recalled

Former league MVP battled drug problems until Sunday's death

OBITUARY | Ken Caminiti was never short of fearless on a baseball field. He made incredible stops at third base, swatted home runs from both sides of the plate and played through pain that would wither most men.

Friends and former teammates shocked by Caminiti's death Sunday in New York at age 41 remembered not only the great plays, but many off-field struggles.

He admittedly used steroids at the height of his career and had been arrested on cocaine charges in recent years.

"There was something that was horribly defective and we loved him in spite of it," San Diego Padres owner John Moores said Monday.

The city medical examiner's office performed an autopsy Monday but could not rule on a cause of death until toxicology tests were complete, spokeswoman Ellen Borakove said. The former NL MVP, a star in Houston and San Diego, was in trouble often the last few years.

Just last Tuesday, he admitted in a Houston court that he violated his probation by testing positive for cocaine in September.

"I just don't know if he ever came to grips with not being able to go out and perform," Padres general manager Kevin Towers said.

BASEBALL | Another round of play-offs is giving Scott Rolen a chance to get his timing back.

The St. Louis Cardinals advanced to the NL championship series for the third time in five years, dispatching the Los Angeles Dodgers in four games.

They did it without much of a contribution from their top RBI man. Rolen, who had 124 RBIs this season, was hitless in 12 at-bats in the division series.

"I'm not real worried about what the stats say or don't say," he said. "I didn't get a hit the whole series, but we're in here popping champagne, and that's all that matters." (AP)

ASK BETSY...

About Financial Aid

This column, sponsored by American Student Assistance, whose mission is to assist borrowers in successfully completing a program of education financing and repayment, will appear in the Express on the second Tuesday of each month. You can "ask Betsy" questions about applying for financial aid, repaying your student loans, or what to do if you're having trouble paying your loans back. Email your questions to askbetsydc@amsa.com or visit www.astudentslife.com.

Applying for Financial Aid Hi Betsy,

My daughter, who lives with her mother and stepfather in Atlanta, will graduate from high school next year. I want to get her started in terms of looking for financial aid, grants, etc. but I am a complete novice in this area.

Can you please tell me where she can apply for financial aid, scholarships, grants etc? I need a starting point. I told her that she needs to go to her school's financial aid office to get information.

1. Is fastweb.com useful?
  2. Can you tell me about the Pell Grant?
- Thank you so much. You are a great service.
Sincerely, J.A;
Washington, DC
Dear J.A.:

Now is a great time of year to begin looking into financial aid options and availability. I'm not very familiar with www.fastweb.com so I can't really advise you either way. I usually recommend www.finaid.org and www.collegeboard.com for both the information they provide and the free scholarship searches they have. The U.S. Department of Education also has a great site at www.studentaid.ed.gov. The bottom line is that any site that provides the information you need in a way that's easy to decipher is worth a look but stay away from a company or organization that charges you for either financial aid advice or assistance with forms. Both of these services can be obtained for free from many sources; most especially your daughter's high school and potential college.

I would have your daughter begin her scholarship searches right away - this is truly one of those "early bird gets the worm" scenarios. She can set it up so it will also email her if a new scholarship becomes available throughout the year.

After the first of the year, she, you and/or her mother will want to fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) at www.fafsa.ed.gov which will determine her federal aid eligibility - including the Pell Grant. This information will be sent to the schools of her choice and from there, these schools will put together a financial aid "package" made up of some or all types of aid such as loans, grants, scholarships etc. Comparing these packages may help you and your daughter make the final decision between several schools she is considering.

A Pell Grant is a need based, federal grant that currently has a maximum annual award of $4,050 (as appropriated by Congress). Eligibility is determined by the FAFSA and the school and the grant (which means it doesn't have to be paid back) is intended for lower-income families. Finally, if she is considering going to college in Georgia, she may want to check out the state Department of Education. Many states have scholarships, grants and/or no interest loans for residents attending an in-state college. Please let me know if you have further questions.

Federal Student Loan Availability Dear Betsy:

Thanks for your previous e-mail. Your information is extremely useful. Can I ask you another question?

My daughter's stepfather makes about 150K. I make about 65K. My ex-wife is not working. Will my daughter be able to get a student loan? Thanks a lot for your information.
J.A.

Dear J.A.;

There are three types of Federal student loans. Subsidized Stafford loans and Perkins loans are in the student's name and are "need based" while unsubsidized Stafford and PLUS loans are not. PLUS loans are taken out by the parent on the student's behalf. Based on the information provided, she may not qualify for the full amount of any of the subsidized Stafford or Perkins loans, but your family should absolutely qualify for the PLUS and maybe the unsubsidized Stafford.

I'm glad I could be of assistance.

Schilling, Mussina to square off in opener of Yankees-Sox series

BASEBALL | Curt Schilling signed with Boston for this very reason — to silence the hated Yankees and pitch the Red Sox to that elusive World Series title.

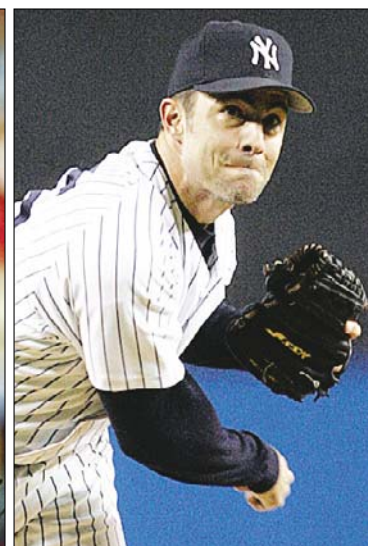

"I'm not sure I can think of any scenario more enjoyable than making 55,000 people from New York shut up," he said Monday, a day before starting the opener at Yankee Stadium against Mike Mussina.

Before the first pitch was even thrown, the AL championship series had players buzzing. They thought back to the 45 intense meetings between the rivals during the past two years, to the on-field fights and the clubhouse boasts.

Following Boston's first-round sweep of Anaheim and New York's 3-1 win over the Twins, Schilling and Mussina are rested heading into the opener. The Red Sox rotation has Pedro Martinez pitching Game 2 on Wednesday, followed by Bronson Arroyo on Friday at Fenway Park and Wakefield the following day in Game 4.

Jon Lieber and Kevin Brown follow Mussina for the Yankees, who still haven't decided between Orlando Hernandez or Javier Vazquez in the fourth game. El Duque, bothered by a tired arm, felt better Monday, when he threw about 60 pitches in a bullpen session, according to pitching coach Mel Stottlemire.

Schilling, acquired by the Red Sox from Arizona last November, plays for moments like these. He's won six straight postseason decisions since 1993, allowing two earned runs or fewer in all nine of his starts.

"I don't know that I've ever pitched in a game that will have the atmosphere that tomorrow's game has. In Arizona during the World Series, it was electric," Schilling said, "but I think the Yankees and the Red Sox is a step above everything else."

Rivera May Miss Game Tuesday

BASEBALL | Amid the bustle of the New York clubhouse, Mariano Rivera's untouched locker stood out as a reminder that the New York Yankees might be without their best pitcher in the opener of the American League championship series.

Rivera flew home to Puerto Caimito, Panama, after two family members were electrocuted in his pool. The funeral of Victor Dario Avila, a cousin of Rivera's wife, Clara, and Avila's 14-year-old son is Tuesday, the same day as Game 1 of the series.

Rivera's agent, Fernando Cuza said the pitcher "should be back in time" for Game 1.

"If he's here tomorrow, wonderful. If he's not, then we understand that." Yankees manager Joe Torre said on Monday. (AP)

Mauresmo's Injury Opens Door to No. 1 for Davenport

Top-ranked Amelie Mauresmo of France withdrew from the Kremlin Cup on Monday, a day after a thigh injury forced her to quit during a final in Germany against Lindsay Davenport. Davenport, seeded second, trails the Frenchwoman by 15 points in the WTA Tour rankings.

Davenport has a first-round bye in Moscow and a second-round victory will push her to No. 1 next week. Mauresmo aggravated a thigh injury in the Porsche Grand Prix on Sunday. Davenport won the first set 6-2 before Mauresmo stopped. (AP)

A letter from the concerned citizens and organizations of Norway

The Honorable George W. Bush
President of the United States
Washington, DC

Mr. President

As friends of the United States, we respect your country's strength, creativity and generosity. At this point in history however, we are compelled to speak out. Four out of five Norwegians oppose the U.S.-led war on Iraq and our government has failed to clearly express the majority opinion of its people.

Mr. President – we urge you to change your foreign policy. To pursue a flawed and failed policy is a sign of weakness. We want the United States to be strong and creative enough to apologize to the Iraqi people for an unjust war, and to the Allies for having misled them. We want the USA to be generous enough to compensate the innocent victims of violence, looting and trauma inflicted by torture. We firmly believe that the quest for peace in Iraq is best led by the United Nations and a democratically-elected Iraqi government.

Mr. President – your country can once again be a leading example of democracy and freedom, inspiring a world where terrorism can no longer breed. Your present policy only fosters resistance, more than ever, everywhere.

Mr. President – the choice is yours.

Sincerely

Concerned citizens and organizations of Norway

Punk Yoga a Stretch

HYBRIDS | The guitarist plugs in his amp, and the yoga instructor wears black bike shorts. They prepare for their twist on an ancient practice: punk rock yoga.

Power yoga, baby yoga, kickboxing yoga, and now this. Has yoga fusion finally gone too far?

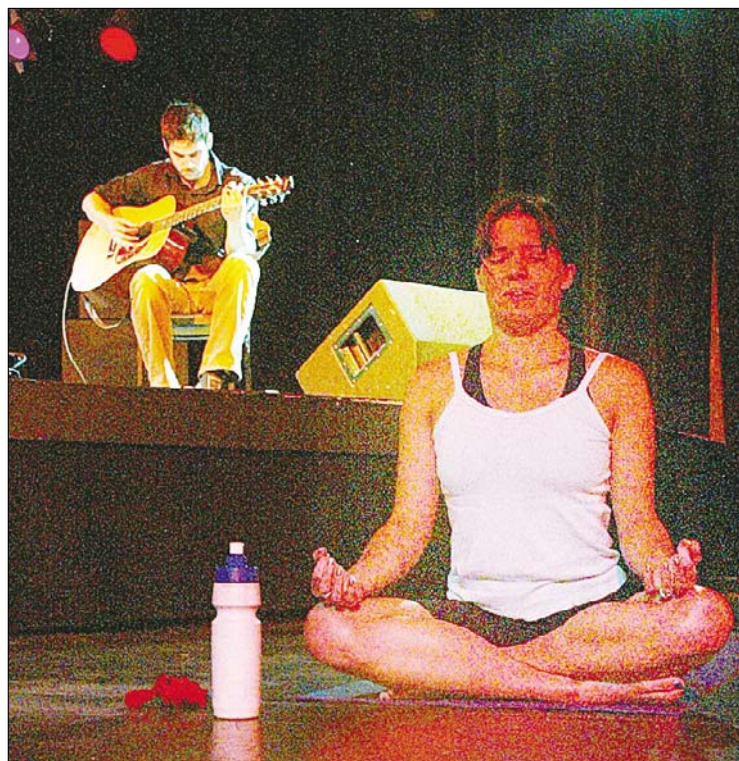

Nope, said instructor Kimberlee Jensen.

"It's the whole do-it-yourself ethic," said Jensen, 34. "Punk is democratic, nonhierarchical — that's definitely the way I like to approach it."

Her free, weekly classes are held at an all-ages nightclub and aimed at people who wouldn't be caught dead in a health club.

Jensen was inspired by the success of Punk Rock Aerobics, the brainchild of two Boston women who turned classic punk moves into a real workout. Jensen knew she would need something a little mellow.

The live music in her classes

doesn't sound anything like punk. The music is quiet and peaceful, flowing with the yoga poses — but still "raw and organic" like punk, Jensen said.

An acoustic guitar duo once performed easy-listening versions of punk classics for her class.

"A lot of people who come probably would not respond to traditional Hindu music," Jensen said.

She eschews a fancy studio with mirrored walls for a dark, black-painted nightclub. She banishes rows of yoga mats in favor of a circle arranged around a plate of flickering votive candles.

"I get new people in off the street every time," Jensen said. She especially remembers one student who told her, "This is the first physical thing I've done where I haven't felt made a fool of."

"That," Jensen said, "is what yoga should be."

Erik Englund, 28, has been attending Jensen's classes for about a year. He said the nightclub setting intrigued him, and the relaxed atmosphere kept him coming back.

"This felt very unpretentious," he said. REBECCA COOK (AP)

Actor, director and medical crusader Christopher Reeve dies at 52

APPRECIATION | Christopher Reeve, the chiseled "Superman" of celluloid who became another kind of hero as a force for spinal cord research after a devastating horse-riding accident, has died at 52.

Reeve, a quadriplegic for the last nine years of his life who vowed that he would one day walk again, died Sunday of complications from an infection caused by a bedsore.

His wife, actress Dana Reeve, issued a statement thanking "the millions of fans from around the world who have supported and loved my husband over the years."

After winning worldwide fame as Superman in four films from 1978 to 1987 and struggling to "escape the cape" with later roles, Reeve suddenly became the face of spinal cord injury after his May 1995 riding accident.

The injury left him without the use of his arms or legs; he could not breathe without a ventilator. He was still dealing with the horror of his injury when he decided how he would spend the rest of his life.

"No one was specifically saying, 'You could lead the charge on spinal cord disorders,' but hearing from certain people helped me formulate the idea," Reeve wrote in his

GROUNDING: Reeve personified the humble heroism of Superman to a generation.

REEVE IN A 1996 SPEECH AT THE OSCARS

1998 memoir, "Still Me."

He used his fame to win attention and funding for scientific study of disabilities like his and to lobby for looser restrictions on stem-cell research.

Three years after the accident in Culpeper, Va., he said he didn't "go nuts" thinking about his once-active life.

"On a breezy day I'll look at the wind in the trees and realize what a great day it would be to be sailing in Maine," he told the Associated Press. "Or I look at the puffy clouds and think, 'I'd love to be gliding again.' And then I'll let it go."

Reeve did some directing and even returned to acting in a 1998 production of "Rear Window," an update of the Hitchcock thriller. He won a Screen Actors Guild award for best actor in a TV movie or miniseries.

Recently, Reeve returned to the comic-book story that made him famous. He made several guest appearances on the WB series "Smallville" as a scientist advising the teenage Clark Kent.

Funeral plans were not complete. His foundation said there were plans for a small family service and then a big gathering in New York City sometime in the next two weeks. JIM FITZGERALD (AP)

Retro Tech: VHS or Beta

The name VHS or Beta doesn't come up when the glittery phenomenon of dance-inclined guitar rock is being discussed, just as stunning exotics like Sophia Loren probably didn't make the list of prettiest girls in their youthful hometowns. But the eyeliner-heavy Louisville quartet (VHS, not Sophia Loren) will surely be the belle of the ball someday, playing that trashy electro-disco with retro sass and a punk edge.

What Might Have Been

Philip Roth's novel posits a terrifying past — or future?

BOOKS | "The Plot Against America" (Houghton Mifflin) is a work of fiction, Philip Roth tells us — Charles Lindbergh never was elected president and he never led the United States into anti-Semitism and genocide.

And yet ... the narrator is 7-year-old "Philip Roth," and the other main characters are Philip's mother, father and brother, and the setting is Roth's own childhood Jewish enclave in Newark, N.J.

In this verifiable real past, Roth conjures the slow descent of that America into anti-Semitic fascism, as reflected in the lives of one middle-class Jewish family. The result is extraordinary, a moving and deeply disquieting fable.

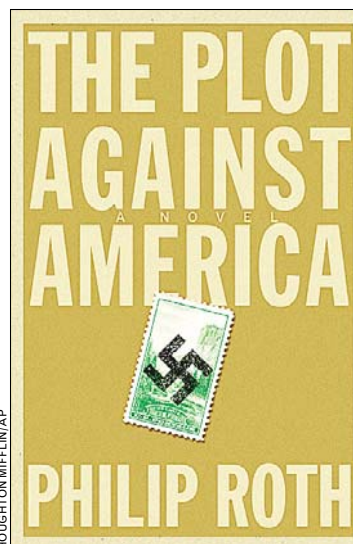

Lindbergh's regime establishes a program to send "city youth" (young Jews) to live in the heartland. Then, the Roths hear that they're being transferred to Kentucky under a federal homesteading program for "immigrant communities."

A cousin joins the fight against the Germans and returns a crippled shell. An aunt marries a prominent rabbi who is the Quisling of the Jews. Violence breaks out around the country, in Newark and in the Roths' second-floor apartment.

The middle-class Jews of "The Plot Against America" have outward differences, but as Roth's father says, they're the real Americans. And they are the heroes of this splendid book.

JERRY SCHWARTZ (AP)

IT COULD HAPPEN HERE: Roth posits a slow, plausible creep into fascism.

Singing Fool

Actor William Shatner can't stay away from the recording studio

MUSIC | Guess who's back with a new album?

No less a songster than William Shatner has returned with "Has Been" (Shout Factory), his first album since "Transformed Man" in 1968, and, this time, he's enlisted Ben Folds, Aimee Mann, Brad Paisley, Henry Rollins and Joe Jackson to help him out.

Much of Shatner's "Has Been" ought to be ridiculous, yet the album exudes an off-kilter style that makes it an instant cult classic.

Ben Folds arranged and produced the album, which features

KEVIN MAZUR/AP

TALKING IT THROUGH: Shatner's got the music — or something — in him.

11 spoken-word pieces by Shatner. He intones solemnly on "It Hasn't Happened Yet" and brings genuine feeling to the attempted filial rapprochement of "That's Me Trying."

The best moments, though, come on the crazy, scenery-chewing tracks, such as "Common People" and "I Can't Get Behind That." The former is a Pulp cover, on which Shatner chronicles an encounter with a rich girl eager to go slumming with "common people." It starts conversationally and builds in bombast until Joe Jackson and Shatner are shouting lines back and forth.

The same principle drives the latter tune, which finds Shatner and Henry Rollins griping about things that bother them: "I can't get behind so-called singers that can't carry a tune, get paid for talking, how easy is that?" Shatner says, before reconsidering. "Well, maybe I can get behind that."

Maybe he's not a has-been after all. ERIC R. DANTON (THE HARTFORD COURANT)

NO RIGHT OR WRONG: Pontecorvo's docudrama indicts French and Algerian alike.

'Battle' Still Impressive

A fictionalization of the Algerian struggle looks uneasily familiar

DVD | "The Battle of Algiers," Gillo Pontecorvo's docudrama about the Algerian fight against occupying France in the 1950s and early '60s, resonates as strongly as ever, the civilians' war of terror against French troops provoking uneasy comparisons to the U.S. presence in Iraq.

The beautifully restored 1966 film comes in a three-disc set from Criterion loaded with five hours of background materials, including an extensive making-of documentary, historical analyses of the Algerian struggle, a chronicle of Pontecorvo's return to Algiers in 1992, and discussions by filmmakers Spike Lee, Oliver Stone, Steven Soderbergh, Mira Nair and Julian Schnabel on the movie's style and influence.

Also new this week, the gloriously refreshing 1974 compendium "That's Entertainment!" and its 1976 and 1994 follow-ups pay homage to great musical, comedy and romantic moments from the vaults of MGM (whose classic films now belong to Warner Bros.). The three installments are available separately or in a boxed set with a bonus disc with five hours of documentary background, deleted musical numbers and other making-of materials.

From Paramount comes "The Nutty Professor," the 1963 comedy headlining a rush of mad-cap Jerry Lewis titles debuting on DVD. "Professor," which was updated in Eddie Murphy's 1996 hit and its sequel, stars Lewis as a chemistry professor who's the big nerd on campus until he creates a potion that transforms him into a swinger.

The nine other Lewis discs: "The Bellboy," "Cinderella," "The Delicate Delinquent," "The Disorderly Orderly," "The Errand Boy," "The Family Jewels," "The Ladies Man," "The Patsy" and "The Stooge," the latter a semi-dramatic pairing of Lewis with longtime partner Dean Martin.

RADIO | When radio shock jocks Opie and Anthony considered their next career move after two firings in four years, the twisted twosome were ready to feign rehabilitation. Or at least that was the plan when they sat down with satellite radio executives.

"And we heard over and over

SO LONG, FCC: A&O jumped to satellite.

again, 'Guys, just go crazy. Do whatever you want in there,' said Greg 'Opie' Hughes.

Welcome to the future of American radio.

O&A debuted last week on XM Satellite Radio, bringing their slice of boys' locker room life to every market from coast to coast. The industry's other big player, Sirius, then announced a staggering $500 million deal with Howard Stern.

Satellite radio now looms as large as the antenna atop the Empire State Building. One industry watcher expects more and more big-name defections from the AM and FM dials if the Federal Communications Commission crackdown on content continues.

Both Stern and the O&A duo rejected lucrative offers to remain on traditional radio. Both said constant censorship from their employers and the FCC drove them off.

"They've lured radio's biggest star to satellite," Stern said after announcing his January 2006 switch to his current 12 million daily listeners. "It's attractive now to do satellite."

The satellite stations have already provided a haven for acts with a far lower raunch factor than the shock jocks, including ex-NPR morning host Bob Edwards, who just debuted on XM.

PBS' NOVA turns Typhoid Mary into a soap opera star

CONTAGIONS | "Nova," the sober and scholarly science series goes to great lengths to dramatize the story of Typhoid Mary, in the provocative installment "The Most Dangerous Woman in America" (8 p.m., PBS).

"Dangerous" takes place at the turn of the 20th century, when treatment of infectious diseases was in its infancy. A sudden outbreak of typhoid in a wealthy family vacationing on Long Island's Oyster Bay shocked many and resulted in frantic medical detective work. Scientist George Sopher (played by Jere Shea in frequent reenactments) traced the infection to the family's Irish immigrant cook Mary Mallon (played by Marian Tomas Griffin).

Sopher's investigations linked Mallon to a series of typhoid outbreaks. The cook violently objected to Sopher's allegations, arguing that she had never been sick with the disease. At the time, the notion of an uninfected "carrier" had just been theorized.

Mallon was eventually quarantined in an island asylum for TB patients on New York's East River. This decision raised questions about civil liberties that reverberate to this day. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

ON TV TONIGHT

"Manhunt" contestants hope to be appreciated for their senses of humor.

PROWLING FOR MEAT
MANHUNT: THE SEARCH FOR AMERICA'S MOST GORGEOUS TOP MODEL (10 p.m., Bravo) follows the beefy, six-pack-ab set through a series of auditions and catwalks.

LIKE 'MANHUNT,' BUT IN SUITS
FRONTLINE (9 p.m., PBS) presents "The Choice," dual biographies of President George W. Bush and Sen. John Kerry. This marks the fifth election-year presentation of these looks at the character-building moments in each contender's life.

DON'T CLIMB EVERY MOUNTAIN
Mountain climbers are kidnapped by al Qaeda terrorists on EXPEDITIONS TO THE EDGE (8 p.m., National Geographic).

CSI: INGOLSTADT FRANKENSTEIN (9 p.m., USA) Parker Posey plays a cop on the trail of a strange serial killer in the 2004 TV adaptation of Mary Shelley's novel.

THAT HAPPENS ALL THE TIME
A wife traces her missing husband to his family plantation only to find him in the process of becoming a cold-blooded reptile in the 1959 shocker THE ALLIGATOR PEOPLE (8 p.m., Fox Movie Channel). KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Rural parents learn to embrace heritage of adopted children

Ryan and Kristy Buescher have driven for hours to learn about the culture of South Korea. They've learned to cook South Korean food. Their two young, biological children have even made South Korean arts and crafts.

Now, all the family has to do is wait for their South Korean baby to arrive.

The Bueschers are part of a growing population of adoptive parents nationwide, especially in rural communities, taking a new approach to raising their Asian children. Rather than downplaying their children's differences as was so often done in the past, parents are now embracing them in hopes that greater understanding will lead to greater acceptance.

"I think it will help him be more confident," Kristy Buescher said.

Experts and other adoptive parents of Asian children say the Bueschers are on the right track. Teaching Asian children in small communities about their heritage also helps them forge racial identities as children instead of finding themselves confused as teens or adults, said Kathleen Ja Sook Bergquist, a social work professor at the University of Nevada.

"For folks in rural communities, they have to work harder at it. They have to look for it. They have to travel for it."

JANE FREYFOGLE
SOCIAL WORKER

Margaret Burrell of Neoga, Ill., said the classmates of her 7-year-old daughter, Natalie, understand her Chinese culture.

"We make moon cakes and the teachers are great and decorate the classrooms," Burrell said. "[Natalie] loves the attention."

Another Neoga couple was

encouraged by Natalie's success and is in the process of adopting a baby girl from China.

A pastel purple room sprinkled with flowers and blue butterflies already awaits Steve and Christie Wright's future child.

"She will be very different and she'll know that," Christie Wright said.

Last year, Americans adopted 8,649 children from China and South Korea, the most children from any foreign region, according to the U.S. Department of State — and that number is only increasing.

Jane Freyfogle, a social worker with Lifelink International Adoption agency's Champaign office, said adoptive parents can go a long way to help their children deal with life in small towns by making sure they know they're not alone. Trips to cities, where kids can see other Asian faces, or to culture camps, where adoptees gather to learn about their heritage, can all help children overcome the sense of isolation they may feel at home.

"For folks in rural communities, they have to work harder at it," Freyfogle said. "They have to look for it. They have to travel for it."

For Patrick and Patti Walsh the work has paid off. Delaney, now 7, from China, hasn't been teased at school for being Asian, and the family socializes with adopted Asian children from other towns.

WHO'S THE VICTIM?

Regarding the Middle East crisis and world terrorism, ask yourself this question:
"In Palestine, who stole property from whom?"

The answer to that question is the solution to the Middle East crisis and the terrorism coming to America.

Movies

Reel News

Washington Post film critic DESSON THOMSON was online Monday to talk about Christopher Reeve and new movie releases | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

What's your favorite Christopher Reeve memory?

At first he used to strike me as the actor who always got the plodding side role — the major, the doctor, the colonel, that sort of thing. But he pleasantly surprised me in his roles in "Noises Off," "The Remains of the Day" and a lesser known film called "Street Smart." Ultimately, his greatest role was as himself, struggling against a formidable problem. He was a man of great courage and heart. I salute him.

To what do you attribute the (relative) mainstream embrace of movies that have heavily surreal elements to their plots? I'm thinking of "Eternal Sunshine ..." and "I Heart Huckabees." Could it be that the MTV generation has grown up to be so comfortable with visuals that fast-cut among a lot of disparate images?

Yes, I think the answer is: Filmmakers are growing smarter and more sophisticated and so is the audience, in part because of what you indicate. We aren't as dumb as Hollywood has assumed for so long

I went to see "Shark Tale" and it really did not impress me at all. What were these idiots thinking when they made this movie? They should have taken a few lessons from "The Cat in the Hat" at least!

I share your dismissal of "Shark Tale" but I'm sorry to say that "The Cat in the Hat" wasn't one of my faves either. (Of course the book is terrific) But both movies, I felt, were bland offerings.

Saw "Ladder 49" this weekend. What a horrible bore. What is the consensus on this one? Could they have fit in any more cliches?

I felt the same thing. It was like watching a public service announcement or an Army training video — the Heroic Firefighters! I found almost nothing in it that entertained or challenged me.

Debates Show Shortcomings

claimed never to have met Sen. John Edwards of North Carolina previously, although photographic evidence has quickly proved otherwise. President Bush refused to cite any errors he regretted during last week's debate in St. Louis, although examples both foreign and domestic are legion. This combination of absolutism and arrogance is precisely why we desperately need regime change in this country.

—FENWICK ANDERSON
Takoma Park, Md.

Correction:

In Monday's sports section, we incorrectly reported the Minnesota Vikings' Dante Culpepper scored three touchdowns on Sunday. He scored five.

AWARDS

Lil Wins Big; So Does West

Rapper-producers KANYE WEST and Lil Jon each took home three prizes at the Source Hip-Hop Music Awards on Sunday. West won awards for breakthrough artist of the year, album of the year for "The College Dropout" and video of the year for "Through The Wire." Lil Jon won along with Usher and Ludacris in the R&B/rap collaboration category for the club anthem "Yeah," which Lil Jon produced. He also took home awards for collaborating with the group Youngbloodz on the single "Damn" and for producer of the year. (EXPRESS)

BRETT FAVRE's autobiography, "Favre," will be released Oct. 19 and published by the NFL and Rugged Land. The Packers quarterback wrote the book with Green Bay Press-Gazette columnist Chris Havel. The 14-year veteran has plenty to talk about. Favre is the NFL's only three-time MVP and is in the top five in numerous passing categories, including touchdowns, completions, attempts and yards. Sports Illustrated's Peter King and Brett's mother Bonita Favre also contribute, with Hall of Fame quarterback

Terry Bradshaw penning the forward. The book comes packaged with an NFL Films DVD. (AP)

BILL COSBY spoke bluntly to middle-schoolers at Richmond's mostly black public schools Monday, stick-

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Are you willing to admit to something you didn't do simply to make things easier in some circles? If not, then stand your ground.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) If you really want time to yourself, you're going to have to tend to basic duties and surprise responsibilities as early as possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) It's definitely time for you to leave the sidelines and get in the game. Others are waiting eagerly for your energy and input.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's important that you find out just exactly what other people know about your own affairs. Only in this way can you put two and two together.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your interest in the affairs of others will heat up. You can learn something that will affect your overall point of view.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Someone may be trying to get too close to you for your taste. Don't let this go on too long; talk about it now — and avoid a crisis.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) What began only recently as a working relationship may actually develop quickly into something else. You are sure to be surprised.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You don't have a great deal of time to tend to your required duties, but get to work as early as possible this morning.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be unusually restless, but you can focus your overflowing energy on those endeavors that remain undone after a long delay.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You should be able to have a fine, entertaining time without spending more money than usual. Use your imagination whenever you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll have to call in an expert if you're unable to fix what is broken. You can't afford to wait too long to tend to this need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your advice will be sought, but your comments may not be taken seriously if you aren't serious in the way you offer them.
